Update! Northern California Mason Training Center is Open for Business

On May 25, I attended the Open House of the Mason Development Center of Northern California in Tracy, CA. This impressive facility is a modern example of efficiency demonstrated by its use of the latest dust collection equipment for cutting and mixing, its ability to recycle all shop-used water, and its utilization of natural light sufficient for students to work in the shop without any other lighting source on most days. The Center opened in November 2010 and recently started its 3rd round of classes. With 16,640 sf, 12,640 of which is dedicated shop space, the Center is well-equipped to serve up to 280 apprentices in 4 crafts throughout 46 northern California counties. Each craft has an instructor guiding students in the trades of Marble, Brick/Block/Stone, Pointers/Cleaners/Caulkers, and Terrazzo. The building itself is constructed of concrete block with stone veneer at the entry. Our very own Immediate Past President, Ron Bennett of E&S Masonry, was on-point for every aspect of this project from land acquisition through design, development, and construction.

Honorable mention goes to CCMCA member, S.W. Mertz Masonry Specialists, Inc. as the project's mason contractor for "a fantastic job" as described by Ron Bennett. Take the tour via our posted photos at the CCMCA website at www.ccmca.org.
